

Commit to marriage

This letter is in response to the story titled, "Living together without marriage: Good idea?" (July 20).

A new study indicates the divorce rate is down, "thanks" to people living together. Wow, maybe we should applaud teenage pregnancy being up, "thanks" to teenagers having sex.

Oh sure, we should continue to "try on" people. It's so much easier than growing up and being responsible and making real commitments.

The sooner we learn to get back to basics and make and keep commitments, the better we can all be. Commitments are the glue that holds our love for each other together.

— Mark R. Durham Sr.,
Belvidere